Web Space to Promote your Environment or Community Care Group

The Bulimba Creek Catchment Coordinating Committee, Inc., is pleased to provide free to member groups a web page on which to introduce your group's work and contact information. An example can be seen at by following the link below. To find out about becoming a member, see our Join B4C page.

All the catchment groups' pages will be accessible via hyperlinks from an index page within the B4C site, and each will have a separate page designation or URL, as above. If your group isn't yet at the stage of creating its own web site, this is an easy and effective means of getting your information out to the community in the meantime.

If interested, please contact us now and provide the following information:

- a paragraph or two describing the group, its objectives and its work;
- dates and locations for meetings, working bees or other regular activities;
- contact information ~ with phone number and e-mail address if you have one;
- a sharp printed or scanned copy of your group's logo;
- up to 3 standard size photographs of your group at work (or play!) ~ we can scan from prints you send, or you can scan them and e-mail the zipped pictures to us as attachments [please ensure any e-mailed picture files are not huge ~ under 300Kb each, with resolution of 300dpi or less is fine].
